

I would like to paint...

I would like to paint the loneness of the marble white polar bear
As it wanders through the freezing Arctic coast

I would like to paint the silent warmth of the golden desert sand
As it sifts from place to place

I would like to paint the determination of hazel brown horse
As he gallops and leaps around the butterfly infested meadow

I would like to paint the chatty, noisy rainforest
As the rain patters softly on the vivid leaves

I would like to paint the snow leopard
As it stalks an unaware hare in the soft cream snow

I would like to paint the tiredness of the scarlet dragon
Waking from a long slumber whilst the gems glisten and glint in the morning sun

I would like to paint the falcon
As it bravely plummets toward the grass green ground

I would like to paint the fat pigeon
As it merrily waddles down the long cobblestone road
